Introduction to Electronic Prescribing for Surgeons and its benefits to the practice and patient care (webinar)

COVID-19 has accelerated the use of digital health, including electronic prescriptions, which continue to be a valuable component of healthcare delivery across Australia. Electronic prescriptions are an option for many types of medicines, offering patients convenient access to their medicines. The Australian Digital Health Agency would like to take this opportunity to discuss key features of electronic prescribing, its uptake across the country and address some frequently asked questions. There will also be an opportunity for Q&A at the conclusion of the presentation.

This webinar is open to all fellows*.
