CONVENER WELCOME & ORGANISING COMMITTEE

Dear Colleagues,

It is with great pleasure that we invite you to participate in the Annual Scientific Meeting (ASM) for the Tasmanian region of the Royal Australasian College of Surgeons (RACS). This meeting is being run in conjunction with the Trauma Symposium and will be held in Australia’s most beautiful state capital, Hobart, at the University of Tasmania’s Medical Science Precinct Hobart, Tasmania, from Friday 9 to Saturday 10 November 2018.

Surgeons, trainees and traumatologists from various disciplines, colleges and professions from the Australasian region will be encouraged to attend this combined meeting.

The theme of the meeting in 2018 is Regional Trauma in Australasia - What is possible and how far can we reach?

We trust that those who joined us last year at The Old Woolstore Apartment Hotel enjoyed their time and will once again be joining us in 2018. For those who were unable to attend last year’s meeting, we encourage you to join us in Hobart to interact with colleagues.

The program has been developed around our aim to:
- highlight regional trauma services and hospitals in Australasia
- promote RACS Trauma Advocacy and other trauma prevention initiatives
- highlight the evolution of the trauma verification and varying trauma systems and foster closer ties between RACS Tasmanian Fellows and the wider trauma community

RACS Trauma Committee meetings will be held over the two days.

We thank the support of industry, in particular RACS Major Supporter The Bongiorno Group, Principal Sponsor Department of Health, Tasmanian Government and Gold Sponsors Hobart Private Hospital and Medtronic. We encourage everyone to visit the trade during breaks.

We look forward to welcoming you to the RACS Combined Tasmanian Annual Scientific Meeting & Trauma Symposium.

Yours Sincerely,

Dr Michael Ee

It’s more than just a coating on the jaws. It’s:
- Less sticking†
- Less eschar buildup‡
- Fewer cleanings§
- It’s more efficient patient care.

Note: Standard reprocessing methods will degrade the nonstick coating and lead to an increase in sticking, eschar buildup, and cleanings.†‡§

Each year the RACS Bi-National Trauma Committee hosts a trauma symposium to coincide with the annual face-to-face meetings of the Trauma Committees ["RACS Trauma Week"] when trauma surgeons and representatives from other colleges such as anaesthesia, intensive care and emergency medicine meet to investigate, review and pursue initiatives in trauma care. A Definitive Surgical Trauma Care (DSTC) course will be held in Melbourne 11 – 13 November 2018. For further information visit https://dстс.com.au/.

To capitalise on this gathering of trauma professionals, a symposium is held to explore issues that, if addressed, have the potential to reduce the devastating effects of trauma (injury) within the community.

This year’s symposium will focus on regional trauma in Australasia: What is possible and how far can we reach? This is an exciting learning opportunity for trauma professionals. The symposium is open to all interested parties.
